

The background is a dark navy blue. It is covered with a complex network of thin, light grey lines connecting small circular nodes. These nodes and lines are scattered across the entire frame, creating a web-like or molecular structure. In the lower portion of the image, there is a distinct line graph. This graph is drawn with a light green line and features several circular nodes at its data points. The line starts at the bottom left, moves up and down in a jagged pattern, and then trends upwards towards the right side of the frame. The overall aesthetic is technical and digital.
